LITTLE ROCK, Ark. and BIRMINGHAM, Ala.

St. Vincent Health System in Little Rock, AR, and HealthSouth Corporation today announced an expansion of its joint venture, St. Vincent Rehabilitation Hospital located in Sherwood, AR. The existing joint venture purchased a 23-bed rehabilitation unit on Dec. 31, 2009. The new unit, St. Vincent Rehabilitation Hospital/Doctors, formerly operated by St. Vincent Infirmary Medical Center, will now be operated under the joint venture and will be managed by HealthSouth Corporation. There are plans to relocate the unit from St. Vincent Doctors Hospital to St. Vincent Infirmary Medical Center within the next 24 months.

"By combining the capabilities of St. Vincent Rehabilitation Hospital with those of the St. Vincent Doctors unit, we will be able to offer sophisticated inpatient rehabilitative care to both sides of the river," said Lee Frazier, chief executive officer of St. Vincent's Rehabilitation Hospital/Doctors. "Our programs and technology are designed to meet the needs of patients experiencing a wide range of functional disabilities such as stroke, head injuries and other neurological diagnoses, and will also complement the Arkansas Neuroscience Institute at St. Vincent."

"St. Vincent Health System and HealthSouth have enjoyed a long-standing partnership in Sherwood. Expanding this partnership to include services in Little Rock will provide a renewed focus on the delivery of high-quality rehabilitation services for the Little Rock community," said Jon Timmis, Vice President and Chief Strategy Officer, St. Vincent Health System.

Inpatient rehabilitation hospitals are a critical link in the continuum of care for patients who are recovering from a wide range of injuries and illnesses such as: stroke, brain and spinal cord injuries, orthopedic, cardiac and pulmonary conditions, and amputations. Increased therapy time and a high level of specialized care are combined with significant physician involvement to provide patients the necessary care to recover.
